AMUSEMENTS.

During the long summer days when actors and actresses are supposed to have enjoyed the breezes of some seashore or mountain resort, Eugene Townsend's dramatization of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's charming story, "A Lady of Quality," for a long time Miss Blair devoted all her attention to the art of fencing, being under the direction of several masters, and she has mastered the art with ease and grace. In the first act of the play Mistress Clorinda is compelled to disarm Sir John Oxon, a most proficient swordsman and man of the world, and to do this successfully in producing the play Miss Blair took up fencing. Her work is both artistic and graceful. "A Lady of Quality" will be presented at the Opera House next Thursday, matinee and night.

"Finlaggan's Ball."

The bill boards, windy spaces and dead walls announce the coming of that famous farce comedy, "Finlaggan's Ball," at the Grand the first half of next week. We are assured that the piece our theatre-goers will witness this season bears every little resemblance to last year's "Ball." The management appreciated the necessity of keeping their farce comedy right up to date, and during the past summer extensive alterations have been made, so that it will appear like a new piece this season. New music, specialties, songs and dances have been introduced, and all old material put aside. A number of new faces will be seen in the company, including a chorus of handsome ladies. Election returns will be read from the stage Tuesday night.

King Dramatic Company.

The King Dramatic Company continues to attract very large audiences at the Grand opera house, and Mr. Kirk Brown and the capable actors and actresses who support him have established themselves as strong favorites with patrons of the theatre. Never before have genuine scenic productions of standard melodramas been attempted upon such a scale. To-day two performances will be given, "Storm Beat" at the matinee and "Cumberland" at night. The high class of these dramas is sufficiently well known to render comment unnecessary.

DEMOCRATS ENTHUSED LAST NIGHT

But Their Endeavor to Outshine "Roosevelt Day's" Demonstration Failed Dismally.

715 MEN WERE IN THE PARADE

Less Than One-Third of the Republicans' Big Demonstration. Holt's Speech.

After weeks of preparation and efforts to interest outside clubs, the widely advertised Democratic street demonstration took place last night, and it was a larger affair than disinterested people had expected—no less than 715 men were in line, including three outside clubs, coming from Benwood, Moundsville and Bridgeport respectively. Compared with the Republican turn-out on "Roosevelt Day," when the Register admitted the marchers numbered 2,400, while this paper claimed an actual count of but 2,370, last night's affair sinks into insignificance.

The line was formed on Chapline street, and moved up Market street to $30. At Turner hall, where the Intelligence counted the marchers, it required but fourteen minutes to pass. The feature of the demonstration was the fine turn-out of the Young Men's Democratic club, which had 186 men in line. The boys of this club made a fine showing and were frequently cheered along the route. The Bryan Escort Club, too, made a fine appearance. The expected large cavalry division from the country did not materialize up to expectations, there being but 104 horsemen in line, and most of these did not take their places in the line until it reached the corner of Twelfth and Market streets on the way down town.

The make up of the parade was as follows:

Chief Marshal and Staff.
Bridgeport Democratic Club—50 men.
Three carriages, with speakers and prominent Democrats.
Cavalry—24 men.
Young Men's Democratic Club of Wheeling—186 men.
Four carriages, containing red fire and Democrats.
Bryan and Stevenson Club of Moundsville—52 men.
Benwood Democratic Club—24 men.
SECOND DIVISION.
Bryan Escort Club—50 men.
Washington District Democratic Club—33 men.
W. W. Irwin Club—35 men.
Cavalry—29 men.
Sixth Ward Democratic Club—35 men.
Eighth Ward Democratic Club—50 men.
Four Carriages—16 men.
Cavalry—10 men.
Total number in line—715 men.

A great amount of red fire was consumed, and in the business district there was a creditable reception to the marchers, the crowds being very dense. The people on the sidewalks, however, were largely Republicans and their badges and cries were greatly in evidence.

MR. HOLT'S SPEECH.

A Small and Apathetic Audience Hears the Man Who Will Muster Into the Great Army of Political "Has Beens" Next Tuesday.

While the parade was in progress in the lower end of the city Judge John H. Holt addressed a meeting at the Opera House. There were about 500 persons present, 300 voters, 150 women and the remainder children, the latter forming the cheering contingent, when there was cheering (which was seldom) and they exercised their voices at every mention of the word "Bryan." This meeting was scheduled to be the banner one of the campaign and the result must have taken the little hope, if there is any remaining, out of the local Democrats.

Mr. Holt arrived some time before the meeting was called to order and the opening was delayed to await the coming of the crowd. It was a vain and futile wait, however, as the crowd did not materialize. The crowd began to diminish after the meeting got under way and by the time Mr. Holt had arrived at the part of his discourse relating to the "dark, devilish and damnable" deeds of the President and the rest of the administration, the crowd had diminished until not much over half remained.

Col. Thomas O'Brien acted as chairman of the meeting and in a brief speech introduced the speaker of the evening as the next governor of the state. This statement brought forth a cheer, about the only sentiment of enthusiasm during the meeting.

Mr. Holt Talks.

The speaker took up the Democratic cry about the practice of slavery in the Sulis Islands. How long has it been, he asked, since the men of the north fought the men in gray in 106 battles and for what purpose and to what end? Simply that the stars and stripes should not wave over a country in which there breathes a human slave. Mr. Holt spoke at length on this point and clung tenaciously to it as if it were a matter affecting the life of every citizen of the United States.

He said we now had the definition of Charles Emory Smith of imperialism. It was the assumption of power without law. He endeavored to controvert some of Mr. Smith's contentions and failed signally. It had much the semblance of a pigmy battling with a giant to see Mr. Holt endeavor to take issue with Mr. Smith. "You cannot keep the Philippines in subjection except with a 13-inch gun," shouted Mr. Holt. It would require an army of a million men, he said. The man out in the field, the man off the farm would be compelled to go to war, he continued, and the audience stared and gaped in open-mouthed wonder at him. He intimated that the whole nation would be composed entirely of soldiers. He continued his talk on "imperialism" and the crowd met his statements with an occasional round of applause.

Talks Trusts.

The speaker then launched upon trusts. The Republican administration, he said, had not enforced any of the existing laws on the subject and had not made any laws tending to regulate trusts. Here is an inconsistency that the smallest boy in the audience (and there were many of them) could see with half an eye. The Republicans were responsible for the Sherman law and they have enforced it as far as possible. He forbore mention of the attempt of the Republican party in Congress to enact an amendment to the constitution regulating trusts. He didn't tell how the Democratic members of that body prevented its passage.

"Capital has the right to combine for the purposes of robbery, while labor had not the right to combine for the purposes of protection," was the exclamation of Mr. Holt, as he launched upon a long talk teeming with deliberate misstatements. He asked what the present policy of Mr. McKinley would result in. The country, he said, would be forever at war and there would be an awful panic. Thus spoke Mr. Holt. Democratic candidate for governor. No one will question his sincerity, for no man with ordinary intelligence would make such statements.

Mr. Holt said Jefferson acquired territory in order to avoid war, while President McKinley, he asserted, waged war to acquire territory. This was simply the difference between wrong and right. It was the difference between Jeffersonian expansion and McKinley imperialism. It was a Democratic policy to do justice to the people of the Philippines. Whenever we have justice and equity in our hands the war would end. Then, said Mr. Holt, we would take down the flag and bring it in peace and dignity home. "It would be better, he said, to haul down the flag in the Philippines than to tear up the constitution at home. Mr. Holt's auditors evidently didn't think much of these statements, as they gave little heed and accepted them in mute silence.

Mr. McKinley's Character.

When Mr. Holt was not making statements of mere negation he was uttering glittering generalities and when not doing the latter he was abusing the President and the Republican party. If there were any truth in Mr. Holt's utterances Mr. McKinley would be blacker than the blackest of the cloven-hoofed gentlemen in the lower regions. He accused him of committing about every crime on the calendar. The President's acts, when not grossly misrepresented by the speaker, were intensely exaggerated. Mr. Holt gave many reasons, all of them feeble and flimsy ones, why President McKinley should be defeated, but did not adduce an iota of argument why Bryan should be elected.

The speaker still had faith in the American people. He believed they were not only awake but aroused to a realization of the situation. They did not want to talk about money or the tariff, but wanted to defend American institutions and save the country. Mr. Holt went on making obscure statements and the audience looked perplexed.

Mr. Holt then referred to the Kansas City convention, and drew a pretty word picture of the visual feast he enjoyed in gazing on the crowd from his perch in the gallery. Every mention of the name of the man from the Platte, he said, was as a touch of the button of an electric bell and it was minutes and minutes before the crowd would desist and the cheering subside.

WHITE BREAD EATERS

Pin Their Faith to a Shadow.

"I was always a great white bread eater, together with pastry, hot biscuit, and generally used coffee. "For some years there was no noticeable effects from this diet, but finally the inevitable happened. My strength began to fail, mind grew dull and stupid. I could eat but little food and could not digest that.

"I had always been of a happy and sunny disposition, but since becoming a white bread eater I became morose and miserable and very cranky to the other members of the family. "One morning a new food called 'Grape-Nuts' appeared on the table. I discovered it had a different taste than the usual health foods. There was a rich, pleasant flavor that seemed to satisfy me perfectly. I became fascinated with Grape-Nuts. "I have now used this food three months, my strength has increased greatly, my mind is now as clear as a bell and I can go through the wear and tear of a day without feeling at all exhausted. I sleep perfectly and have gained upwards of 10 pounds in weight. "I have noticed that strong, healthy people eat Grape-Nuts as well as sick people, and it seems to furnish more nourishment than meat or any food I have ever seen. You can publish this, but please omit my name." Phatome, Neb., P. O. Box 851. This name will be given by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., at Battle Creek, Mich.

THE special train on the Ohio River leaves at 6 p. m., city time, and will stop at Bloch Bros' tobacco works; also stop at Benwood and Moundsville, W. Va., arriving at Sistersville at 6:40 p. m. Returning, special train will leave Sistersville at 11:30 p. m.
